Reflections

Living in the Now

Rev. LeRoy Zemke, Pastor

... in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength.

Isaiah 30: 15

Go confidently in the direction of your dreams! Live the life you've imagined. As you simplify your life, the laws of the universe will be simpler.

Henry David Thoreau

When you dance, your purpose is not to get to a certain place on the floor. It's to enjoy each step along the way.

Wayne Dyer

In every real sense, we, each one, live in the now ... in the on-going moments of the hours, days, weeks, months and years of our lives. We essentially cannot live elsewhere even when the current moments of our lives are disorganized, painful, agonizingly cruel or unbelievably difficult.

Staying present to the moment-by-moment expression of our life's thrust in our personal world, in our business or professional world, or for that matter whatever may constitute the social, economic, political, psychological and spiritual environment is very often challenging and conflicting. So what's the option? Or stated another way, what choices do we have in the face of all manner of life's uncertainties?

All spiritual traditions ask us to get quiet, to get still and to let go of appearances. Appearances for example, are the imagined results of a medical test or group of tests. Appearances are the observations we make of a difficult situation, a disagreement between people, a jumping to conclusions about someone's behavior before we really know what is happening to them or perhaps why. All of us know that misunderstandings occur with loved ones/friends, acquaintances and workers in our business or social life that later prove to be based on how we interpretated a situation, a tense voice tone or even a misunderstood gesture. When some or any of these ideas or experiences occur, we fail to live in the now.

Obviously we need to move confidently in the direction of our good decisions, and trust our inner, deep and hopefully wise reasons for making choices. Rushing into fear, loss, hurt and disappointment is not a wise use of our energy and prevents us from staying present to the bigger picture of our life or the magical moments available to us, all around us or those we know and love.

Fear keeps us attached to the past and colors our future. If we focused upon the negative consequences of driving an automobile, or riding a bicycle, sailing, running a race or any other kind of sport activity we can name, we would remain stopped by the image of ... it cannot work ... or it will not work.

Life unfolds in the present. But so often, we let the present slip away, allowing time to rush past unobserved and unseized, and squandering the precious seconds of our lives as we worry about the future and ruminate about what's past. "We're living in a world that contributes in a major way to mental fragmentation, disintegration, distraction, decoherence," says Buddhist scholar B. Alan Wallace. We're always doing something, and we allow little time to practice stillness and calm.

When we're at work, we fantasize about being on vacation; on vacation, we worry about the work piling up on our desks. We dwell on intrusive memories of the past or fret about what may or may not happen in the future. We don't appreciate the living present because our "monkey minds," as Buddhists call them, vault from thought to thought like monkeys swinging from tree to tree.

Most of us don't undertake our thoughts in awareness. Rather, our thoughts control us. Ordinary thoughts course through our mind like a deafening waterfall, writes Jon Kabat-Zinn, the biomedical scientist who introduced meditation into mainstream medicine. In order to feel more in control of our minds and our lives, to find the sense of balance that eludes us, we need to step out of this current, to pause, and, as Kabat-Zinn puts it, to "rest in stillness—to stop doing and focus on just being."

We need to live more in the moment. Living in the moment—also called mindfulness—is a state of active, open, intentional attention on the present. When you become mindful, you realize that you are not your thoughts; you become an observer of your thoughts from moment to moment without judging them. Mindfulness involves being with your thoughts as they are, neither grasping at them nor pushing them away. Instead of letting your life go by without living it, you awaken to experience." from Psychology Today

To consider the inner power available to us as we focus upon the present, give thought to the idea that we are a living breathing entity held in an unconditional field of radiant force. This radiant energy is breathing us even as we feel we are breathing it. While we are breathing we think we are in control but breath is not under the function of our will. We can speed it up or slow it down but it has its own quality. It is dynamic, fluid and all embracing!

Once we genuinely relax into this state, it is incredibly freeing ... it allows us to see/sense/feel that whatever we are calling God or the Life Presence, we are really able to see our tendency to control outcome or worry about things far beyond our reasonable involvement with them.

Some important values we can uncover regarding living in the now.

- It invites us to focus (in a mindfulness sense) upon the deeper components of our nature.
- Distractions that tend to pull us away from our necessary or important choices fall away.
- Once we decide that we are no longer victims of an unfriendly universe or pawns of a capricious cosmic chess player, we claim freedom to be the soul we incarnated to be and thus reveal to ourselves and our life the larger purposes of our soul.

- We allow ourselves to surrender fantasies (however pleasant) they may be. Imaging possible or desirable outcomes to our yearnings is a worthy exercise. Staying present to life allows us to actually accomplish the goal(s) we imagine.
- Staying present allows us to show up for our own life and let go of trying to control others and some scenario that's theirs to do. The clearer we are about who we are, the more we can focus upon what is essential to us that the Source of All Life is seeking to express through and as us.

Finally, I believe meditation, mindfulness practices and prayer are helpful to live in the now.

Living in the now really suggests that we can access the power of the "God within". We can call it Divine Light, Divine Love, Divine Wisdom or some other name but it is the real anchor in the times that we are being buffeted by unruly winds and noisy storms created by our ego nature.

Clarity comes when we become quiet and still. Then we can genuinely go forward in the moment to see what is placed before us.

... in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength.

SPIRITUAL APPROACH TO DEATH, DYING, CAREGIVING AND GRIEF

Rev. Carol Dooley RN

3 Thursdays 7/13, 20, 27 1-3 pm $60.00 Scholarships Available

This course will allow us to become comfortable with the end-stage process of life whether it be for us or someone we love. Carol will bring an awareness of what is needed to look for in these end-stages and how anyone in the position of caregiving can have a spiritual connection with the person transitioning.

Each of us will also explore how we can survive the grieving process. By having a greater understanding of the cycle of life, each person will be able to relate better to the spiritual experiences as mentioned in her book; "Heaven Has No Address". Book will be available for sale at the class.

Rev. Dooley studied extensively at the College of Metaphysical Studies in Clearwater and later became an ordained minister. Through years of practice, she became a certified medium and a spiritual counselor. In addition, she is a Therepeutic Touch practitioner, does reflexology, past-life regression, numerology and is an artist. Her most recent accomplishment is authoring the book "Heaven Has No Address".

You are invited to attend a Workshop on Dreams

DREAM ANALYSIS A WAY TO LISTEN TO GOD

Instructor Louise Fimlaid Saturday July 15, 12:00-3:30 p.m.

BRING A DREAM $20

Throughout the Bible there have been those who dreamt and those who would interpret the dreams. Dreams reveal forgotten depths of the human being and our connection to the spiritual world that surrounds us. These dreams are messages that come from our higher self which can guide us in resolving inner conflicts. When we sleep, we block out distractions, and at that time our subconscious and soul finds a way to make us realize what is really going on in our lives and how it is affecting us.

This workshop is designed to teach us how to interpret our dreams. Many times there is a dream that we repeat over and over. The planet Neptune, which is responsible for our imagination, sets the stage and is the script writer. The game is to find the clues, which allow us to solve the mystery. Knowing this technique will tell us the hidden message that belongs to only you.

Without this knowledge and tools to decipher these dreams, we are left with only a movie that entertained or scared us. What images are in our dreams appear there as props. Each of us is everything in our dream and everything has a special meaning relating to what we are dealing with at the present time. The use of this information will allow us to understand what your inner self is attempting to reveal to us.

A prerequisite to attend the class is to BRING A DREAM. In class you will draw your dream on a very large piece of paper for the class to see. Louise will take you on a dream walk, which will show how to interpret future dreams.

The Higher Purpose of Intuition

Rev. LeRoy Zemke

Saturday July 29
10 - 4 p.m.

Intuition is most clearly and precisely defined as sudden/direct knowing. It's an internal experience of a simple/complex nature offering specific information to us that occurs beyond rational thought, reasoning or processed thought.

In a new and exciting context, we will have a focused opportunity to discover some of the new methods and processes that can be useful in accessing Intuition in our daily/professional lives.

- 1. THE SILENT VOICE ... How do we learn to recognize the voice of our deep Intuitive self in the midst of all the clamor and saber rattling distractions of our ego nature? Two specific techniques will be presented for direct experience. Exercises will be discussed.
- 2. THE GIFT OF REVELATION. What specific purpose does intuition serve in our day to day life? How do we access the practical aspects of Intuition in our personal life and find a way to become open to its presence? Is there any area or avenue of our lives that cannot be available to the intuitive experience?
- 3. THE WORKSHOP is designed for new as well as advanced students and teachers of the Inner Way to clarify and strengthen our deep intuitive revelation(s). Wherever we are in the journey of our lives, professionally or personally, each person can benefit from this experience.

These workshops on The Tarot are unlike any studies that you have done. In order to understand the true spiritual meaning of the Tarot, this course will also explain the inter-relationship among the Tarot, Numerology, Astrology and the Kabalah. All are ancient, deeply spiritual studies, which correspond in many ways and add layers of richer meaning to one another when combined together. Tarot study is a journey into a vast realm where you can explore possible futures, learn from the past, and gain invaluable insights into your thoughts, feelings and motivations, made all the more profound and useful when studied along with the other 3 esoteric subjects.

In this series, Louise will provide:

- An in-depth interpretation for each of the 72 cards in the Tarot.
- Clear visual presentations of each card onto a screen as it is discussed.
- A thorough understanding of the Kabalistic Tree of Life and where and why each Tarot card can be represented on it.

After which you will cut and paste the card on your own Kabalah Tree of Life.

Too often one only understands the mundane meaning of the Tarot cards.

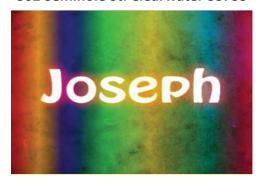

There is a spiritual meaning for every card.

For example: While the Lovers card can clearly signify love and romance, what more comprehensive meaning might it have in a reading when someone asks where his/her life is headed? In such a case as this, another aspect of the Lovers card may prove to be more insightful, that aspect which indicates that we function on three levels of consciousness; the subconscious, conscious and superconscious. Depending on which of these 3 levels of interpretation is the one chosen to focus on, the outcome indicated to that question can vary significantly. By exploring alternate interpretations and the layers of meaning embedded in the cards, your Tarot readings will become more accurate and helpful.
