Reflections

Honoring All Living Beings

Rev. LeRoy Zemke, Pastor

The eyes of all wait upon Thee O Lord ...
Psalm 145: 15-21

See yourself in others. Then whom can you hurt?
What harm can you do?

The Buddha

The individual realizes that that he is part of an infinite scheme, his own life playing its measured part in the Divine Plan.

Silver Birch

The perfected man ... does not interfere in the life of beings. He does not impose himself on them but he “helps all beings to their freedom”. (Lao-Tse)

Martin Buber

As we consider all of life in its myriad and infinite variety of forms living upon our planet (earth) it is a grace, and, in a much larger sense, a divine gift. While it may take each of us a different amount of time, as well as our individually unique life experiences to come to realize this perspective, I believe it will unfold as we become more and more conscious of who we are.

Currently, we have hundreds upon thousands of tiny, small, medium sized and large groups of people who support the planet earth from environmental protection efforts, to animal “rights”, from physical, economic, social and a huge variety of psychological states of being ...to what “rights” do we have to our intellectual, verbal and ideological properties We cannot cover all beings with a political movement or a social agenda that grants each person, group or some special kind of lifetime persuasion ... their freedom or their rights. We can slowly and hopefully, with care and deep consideration, respect the basic human “rights” of races and cultures, creeds and groups of young and old, across the known parts of our planet. Ultimately, however, we cannot reach or really even begin to speak for all people ...

There are unknown numbers of people who do not have clean or fresh drinking water, let alone water to bathe or wash clothes. Some current estimates run about 5% to maybe 10% that have access to water for any purpose on any kind of regular basis. We can add to that adequate or some truly nutritious foods, which are relatively safe and secure and free from disease, pestilence or the ravages of weather, climate extremes, etc. etc. As one might imagine, this list could go on and on and on. It is quite literally unimaginable, quite impossible to know or calculate who or how many people are impacted in this general statement...

When we say in a spiritual sense, “I respect and honor all living beings”, we are affirming the purpose of all life forms to co-exist in an extremely complex world. I believe our inner and outer personal and spiritual perspective is to work with all people, environments, countries and cultures one single step, one single day at a time.

If, I say (spiritually), “I love all beings”, we demonstrate respect for those in the forefront of our lives. To me, this means we respect those we work for or with, associate with, see occasionally or not. As we master this effort we can stretch to love (respect) those of other cultures, races, ethnicities, political persuasion, religious viewpoint or various life involvements that cover the full spectra of human endeavor.

Learning to honor the work of the kingdoms, plant, animal (including all human kingdoms) the environment in which we all live and those kingdoms we cannot see (angels, devas and other spiritual forces known or unknown to us), is a life long goal. It, too, begins one step at a time. The scientists’ work of measuring the amount of oxygen needed for plants, animals and humans needing oxygen is equally as important as the farmer who plants grains, raises animals and harvests crops to feed a community or ultimately the world. Each serves his purpose ... and all are connected in a subtle and/or unbroken chain across the world.

Many teachers reveal to us that we must honor ourselves, to treat ourselves with care, respect and purposeful attention. If we are sick, physically or otherwise (emotionally, mentally, etc.) we cannot really be helpful to other people who need care, consideration and respectful attention.

In a planet as large as ours it is impossible to know the physical, emotional, material and spiritual condition of all human beings, their needs or their circumstances that call forth respectful treatment.

What we can do is to affirm the soulful purpose of each man, woman and child (known as well as unknown) through our thoughts, our actions and our deeds. Whether we agree with political parties or their agendas or not, every person in our world including those we intensely distrust or say we “hate” for any of a hundred reasons is still an individualized soul with a divine purpose. Each is a child of God carrying a spark of the Divine in their heart and in some way fulfill a purpose on our planet whether we can see it, agree with it or even begin to acknowledge it or not.

Eight suggestions for the honoring process:

- 1. Respect, care for and honor ourselves. All forms of consideration for another starts with our own treatment toward and care of our life, its needs, issues and circumstances to the best of our ability.
- 2. Learn to observe first, and then listen, listen deeply. Often we see what we think or believe to be true, only later to discover differently. Listening at depth requires patience and an internal openness to what is presented.
- 3. Free one’s self of anger, hurt, pain and disappointment. When we are hurt we tend to project hurt to others. When we are angry (whether we feel justified or not) it is always a better idea to clear our atmosphere of the deep hurt or the confusion we feel inwardly before we attempt to reach out to others with difficult issues similar to or different from our own.
- 4. Let go of right/wrong judgments of others. This begins when we do the same toward ourselves. If we feel we are caught in wrong/right behaviors or perceptions, we cannot be clear to respect others. Why? Our internal filters will be a major problem until we can genuinely let such perceptions and beliefs fall away.
- 5. Be the best person that is possible at any given moment in time. Realize we each do our best when we are not under pressure to perform or dance to the music of another. Once we deeply see this, we can begin to see others from a clearer perspective and and affirm them from more respectful place.
- 6. Respect for and thus honoring others is not about agreement with basic beliefs or core ideals. We are not our attitudes or our viewpoints. A person may express an agnostic, or pagan, or an atheist viewpoint which may color behavior, language or attitude. However, each is still a child of God with a soul, a spark of the Divine within and ultimately needs to be seen as such.

7. Accept what is as well as what is not. Jesus asked us to “love one another as ourselves.” All the great teachers have shared similar affirmations. Each person is a child of the All Pervading God Presence. What they demonstrate of that knowledge may be very different for each based on creed, culture, education (or lack of such). But they still are, each one, a child of the Living God.

8. Every day find something to praise, celebrate or commemorate from the banal to the beautiful. Think of places, plants, people, birds, bees and angels. Think of loved ones, friends, family, children, toads and frogs. Remember the fruited plains and the purple mountain majesties of the world in which we live.

If we can begin to think of all the known life forces which exist, let alone the unknown, we have begun to honor all beings. The honoring process is one of recognizing that each grouping of every kind and form of being in the world we know as earth (and the human world as well) is profoundly important. As that happens I suspect, we begin to see a purpose.

As we consider the ebb and flow of cosmic energies, we recognize them as part of a larger whole of which we are an indispensable part. We have a work to do, a purpose that can ultimately become conscious ... thus do we make our contribution to life’s unfolding from the tiniest life form to the most refined and expansive cosmic being we could ever hope to become!

SPIRITUAL COMMUNION

Beloved Members and Friends:

As an interfaith metaphysical community we include many practices and rituals from a number of different spiritual traditions, including the offering of Communion.

We are deeply committed to providing the most sacred, inspiring and meaningful experience possible. Across the years, we have listened to what many of you have shared with us about your personal experience of communion and the desire for something new and inspiring. We have been actively attempting to find a new form of Spiritual Communion to meet the unique needs of our spiritual community.

The new form of Spiritual Communion is both a simple ritual and a sacred blessing.

Step 1: After lighting a single white candle, we slowly and prayerfully invite each person in the audience to silently connect to the Inner Light of the Presence of God in our hearts. This is done through the breath, directed by the pastor(s).

Step 2: Once the initial breath process is completed, we will invite all in attendance to receive a sacred touch. This will occur, individually, (in silence) by the prayerful touch of the ministers as the blessing of light is imparted.

In such a communion, individuals are invited to release past mistakes, errors in perception and actions/deeds and turn them over to the transforming Light of God.

In the blessing that follows we are nourished and filled with a deeper sense of God's power as it ignites, fulfils and divinely illumines our lives day by day.

Spiritual Communion will be offered on Mother's Day, May 14 and on Father's Day, June 18.

What Our Hands Reveal The Basics of Palmistry

8 weeks - starting Thursday
April 27 - May 25
7-9 p.m. $80.00
Instructor Rev. Annette Mason

(Can be paid in 2 parts or see teacher for other arrangements. Scholarships also available and must be applied for 2 weeks in advance.)

Bring a photocopy of both hands with you to the first class. We will begin right away to 'read' what they reveal about us.

The non-dominant hand shows the personality and our natural aptitudes we had at birth. The dominant hand shows what we've actually made of this life and what is most likely to occur in the future.

Comparing the two is one of the most fascinating aspects of palmistry because it shows us how we deal with change and life's events.

Palmistry can answer the following questions and more:

Are we likely to be lucky in love?
Will we be financially successful?
Are we a born artist,
realist, leader, dreamer?

Text needed: The Palm-A Guide to Your Hidden Potential by Rita Robinson
Available from Miracles Bookstore

Annette Mason, a former public school educator and consultant, and has lived and worked in both Atlanta, Georgia and Paris, France. Her metaphysical, spiritual studies began in the early 80's with the study of palmistry among them. Annette finds palmistry to be a fascinating subject and something anyone can enjoy using anytime, anywhere. A Reiki Master for more than 26 years, Rev. Mason has served as a teacher, reader and healer at the Temple from 2004 - 2014 as Assistant Pastor

THE SEVEN RAYS MADE VISUAL

Saturday May 6
11:00 - 4:00

Teacher Rev. Terra Giordani

The teaching of the Seven Rays provides a key, a way of understanding the Divine Plan of Creation (on cosmic levels), and our place in the grand scheme of things as a whole.

A Ray is defined as a particular quality of energy. Emphasis is upon the quality that force exhibits such as love and wisdom, and not upon the form aspect that it creates. There are seven different Rays, or qualities of energy. A human being is expressive of one or another of the Rays. As human beings, we consist of a soul, our personality, emotions, mind, and our physical body.

We will explore the Seven Rays, with particular emphasis on how they relate to us personally (individually) as human/spiritual beings. The Seven Rays can be thought of as a holistic approach to the visible and invisible worlds. In this workshop we will discover our own individual pattern, which will give us the key to our identity.

It's particularly interesting at this time that nations also are influenced by the rays as is presently being played out in America's conflicts in Afghanistan and Iraq. How do the Nations tie in with affecting us? By the ray they function under!

The next spiritual step ahead is to understand who we are, and to have a clearer idea of our spiritual and personal energy patterns. This leads to the integration of our person, which makes it easier for us to live life as a soul-integrated being.

The Five Languages of Love

June 3, 2017

11:30 am – 1:30 pm

June is the Month of Love! We most often give love to others in the ways we prefer to receive love. While all the Love Languages should be a part of your relationships, people often have dominant preferences in the way they receive and give love. This can unknowingly cause a “disconnect” when the giver and recipient have different love languages because acts go unnoticed, underappreciated, or miss the mark completely.

Tantra: The Yoga of Shiva and Shakti

June 10, 2017

10:00 am – 12:00 pm

In the West, Tantra is often understood as heightened sexual practices. This simplistic definition misses the deeper definition of Tantra: the balancing of male and female energies in the body to enhance consciousness, creativity, and feeling. Poet Audre Lorde called “the erotic,” the ability to tap into and focus our creative forces, not just for the purposes of sex, but for the enhancement of our overall creative lives and communities. Join Dr. Ronald K. Porter for an exploration of Tantra and a Yoga Practice meant to allow you to tap into your creative abilities and enhance your joy.

Please bring a mat if you have one. Suggested Love Donation: $15.00
