Reflections “The Gifts of Inner Freedom”

If at this moment you could completely calm your body, your thoughts and your emotions, you would instantly become aware of your true Self, the soul, and of your great body of the universe, throbbing with the joy of God. The soul would be “established in its own state.” Isn’t it strange, that the joy of God is there, yet you cannot feel it? The reason you do not know His Bliss is that you are intoxicated with ego feeling (chitta). Your real nature is calmness. You have put on a mask of restlessness: the agitated state of your consciousness resulting from the stimuli of feelings. You are not that mask, you are pure, calm spirit. It is time you remember who you are: the blessed soul, a reflection of Spirit. Take off the mask of feelings. Face your Self.

The Divine Romance

by Paramahansa Yogananda

Letting go gives us freedom, and freedom is the only condition for happiness. If, in our heart, we still cling to anything - anger, anxiety, or possessions - we cannot be free.

Tick Nhat Hanh

In a constantly changing world, the great challenge is to find something called by saints, saviors, and mystics alike, Inner Freedom.

What is this mystery? What is this great yearning that we have to step away from the world, or if not step away, live in it in such a way we can unburden ourselves from the daily treadmill, the incessant demand of cacophonous voices, voices and vicissitudes that beg, nay plead for our constant attention.

Our lives are beset by human demands, needs and unending distractions. Yet all the teachers of the ancient wisdoms speak of the power of stillness, a definite letting go of so much of our attention on the outer and extraordinary demands of the seeming importance of the human world.

In our day to day human life, we often speak of our duties, our obligations, our responsibilities. If we have a professional job/work or business, we have duties to perform, to attend to in ongoing manner. Duties or obligations as well as responsibilities carry with them an internal agreement or commitment to follow through, to get the job or work completed. Depending upon the situation we may feel good or not about the responsibilities thus involved.

If we feel good about our commitment, then, when the specific task is done, there is inner satisfaction, a kind of pleasure in seeing a goal realized. That brings freedom, a freedom from the obligation or duty. As that happens, we find within ourselves a feeling of fulfillment and that something worthwhile has been accomplished.

Imagine, however, that in the doing or completing of the responsibilities we internalize the needed obligations in a negative manner. We interpret the duty we agreed to perform as something we dislike or resent having to follow through with in a timely or appropriate manner.

Often I've noted that we may develop a headache, backache, or stomach ache because our resistance to such an internal agreement is so strong. Or imagine that we actually follow through with the responsibility and feel anger, or something stronger such as hatred, or bitterness; or even wishing harm toward ourselves or toward another person, place or thing. One can easily see or sense where such internal thoughts and reactions can lead us. The entire atmosphere then becomes very negative ... whether it is our work or a personal relationship, or our psychological/mental process in dealing with some or all of life's more difficult or perceived to be difficult circumstances.

Inner freedom is a most precious sacred realization that emerges when we really allow ourselves to connect with the Spirit, the Life Force within us.

Spiritual essence is already profoundly and powerfully present. We do not have to search for it. Thus, the real task is to remember that the Spiritual Power or Presence is always available.

In many religious settings, churches and environments, the message is offered, "Call upon me ... and I will deliver you." Psalm 50:15

The real difference is that in traditional religions, God, or God's Presence is perceived to be external, outside of us, above us, beyond us, always exterior. Metaphysical teaching says, God is within us, inside as a divine spark often suggested as within the heart, or heart center of the human being.

HOW DO WE REMEMBER?

Allow me to share some simple, straight forward suggestions, that when implemented will truly bless us or free us from many of our conflicts or restrictions. Such practices will help us to release the actual physical tension in our body at the most basic level of our lives!

1. Exercise; all forms of physical involvement, climbing, running, walking, swimming, stretches, calisthenics, hiking, (to name a few), help to improve circulation to all parts of the body, bring nourishing blood flow to all the cells, tissues, tendons, bones etc and thus relieve tension, thus reducing all forms of stress - physical, emotional, mental, psychological.
2. Sports; all forms of simple to complex sports from basketball, football, baseball, badminton, golf to canoeing, river rafting, aerobic exercise, at home or at a spa. These can include volleyball, soccer, tennis, racing, etc.
3. Meditation; all systems of meditation when sincerely practiced offer inner calmness or quietness and freedom from focus on what's wrong or missing in our lives. One meditative system is not better than another. What's essential involves regular, if not daily practice. The work is to give time and internal space to becoming genuinely quiet and peaceful.
4. Spiritual practices such as yoga, tai chi, Akido, mindfulness, contemplation, walking the labyrinth. The key here is to access these systems as a gentle practice to become stress free, to gain a deeper sense of inner freedom!
5. Social Involvements; Dancing, singing in a church or community choir or choral group, personal involvement with theater, both on or off stage, festivals, involving participation-sharing of talents, skills or time shared in helping to create or support such events. Rich internal rewards can and do emerge from such participation and allows us to experience genuine inner freedom!

Inner freedom is a state of a deep, positive, balanced internal relationship to our Self, the Sacred Self, the Divine Self (or Spark of God within) to our human personal mental/emotional/physical form called a body. Some of the freedoms I reference in this month's theme are patience mercy, compassion, unconditional love, freedom from a place of fear, failure and loss to a space of trusting life to support us in maintaining a state of equilibrium, balance with our body, our emotions, as well as our mental states.

As we embrace one, some or most of the aspects suggested above, the sense of inner freedom enables us to access our talents, skills, abilities. For example; if we want to experience ourselves as an artist, musician or writer, we must allow, deeply and genuinely to move in the direction of the training and acquisition of the education we may need. We say "yes" to the possibility instead of delaying such potential choice to the future with excuses such as, "I can't do it," or "I wasn't born with any talent."

Genuine inner freedom allows us to free ourselves from false beliefs that limit and thus really bind us to behaviors, attitudes that do not serve us! Once begun the sense of what we can accomplish is limited only by what we deeply know or believe to be true.

Perhaps there is no external ultimate goal for inner freedom ... what serves us is the opportunity we have to discover or realize that we are not confined by our fears or past mistakes or what we perceive to be as errors!

The more we let go of our mental beliefs (sometimes called memes), emotional attitudes that restrict us, about ourselves or others, we gain steps toward inner equilibrium.

Many times we make a decision about a person, a man/woman, a group of people that's based on limited, often inaccurate information. Thus whenever we see them or think about them, we tense up. We create an internal response to them that is limited, negative or damaging to ourself or in our interaction the other person or group. We can readily see that our negative reactivity or preset ideas make for a very limited relationship.

And each time we engage in thought or even possible action we are restricted by our attitude belief or perhaps even limited experience. One can easily recognize how such does not serve us or anyone else. If we are always anticipating a fearful response or a negative response to a circumstance in our lives, real inner freedom to be who we are, to be kind, thoughtful, loving, caring, at peace with ourselves or others is not really possible.

In conclusion, inner freedom emerges as we learn to live in the world of form and function as a joyful, conscious participant. It's our ego based nature that brings focus upon our false identities, inappropriate demands and selfish ends. When we are able to be at peace, or at a point of equilibrium, inwardly, then the outer world around us reflects the reality as well. Our soul knows the way. Our conscious connection to and with our soul will help to bring a kind of balance that allows life to genuinely unfold, gently nudging us in the direction of inner freedom.

Astro – Insights

by Carol (“CJ”) Bonni

Spotlight for this July - August issue is on the signs Cancer and Leo.

Cancer (June 20-July 21) A water sign. Cancer begins on the first day of summer, also known as Solstice. Days start to grow longer providing more solar energy. The enhanced solar energy brings a renewed interest in creative projects. This creative energy is supported by Mercury’s apparent retro-grade motion, which will be in effect from May 29th through June 22nd. During this time of retrograde movement, Mercury urges all of us (not just Cancers) to slow down and turn our thoughts within. Re-think, re-consider, re-define, renew, revisit. All words that begin with “re” are appropriate activities under retrograde Mercury. You might as well put your to-do list away during a Mercury retrograde period. Venus and Mars are both in the sign of Leo at the Cancer New Moon. Moon Children will experience this influx of fire energy in the area of self-esteem and personal worth. If you have ever had issues about self-esteem, the combined energy of Venus and Mars in Leo will assist you in overcoming any doubts you may have about your worth. You are sizzling, confident and charming. The combination of Venus/Mars in Leo will continue through the end of July.

Leo (July 22-August 22) A fire sign, Leo is ruled by the Sun. Known for your sunny disposition and desire to please, you are the entertainer of the Zodiac. Because you are loyal, you value loyalty from your close friends and associates. Once convinced of others’ loyalty, you will stand by them forever. The August New Moon occurs on August 8th at 16 degrees of Leo. Mercury, the planet that describes one’s sense of humor, is also in Leo, very close to the Sun/Moon, giving you an enhanced ability to communicate your thoughts in a light-hearted way with humor. At the time of the August New Moon, both Mars and Venus have moved into the sign of Virgo. For Leos this planetary combination focuses attention on financial matters. This energy occurs in the earth sign of Virgo, helping you to take the time to make a plan, think it through, and test the practical value of the plan. Because Virgo is also concerned with matters of health and nutrition, you would be well advised to pay extra attention to your diet during this time.

A few words for all those who AREN'T Cancers or Leos:

Virgo: Be willing to step outside your comfort zone this summer. Take a chance!

Libra: Own your power. Use the summer months to make much needed changes.

Scorpio: Set aside your fears and feel your spiritual connection to all that is.

Sagittarius: Ready to share your wisdom and knowledge? Now's the time!

Aquarius: Be willing to let go of all that no longer brings you joy. Let your inner Teacher be your guide.

Pisces: Find peace and contentment while communing with your inner mermaid at the beach this summer.

Aries: Your Light shines brighter than ever this summer. Share it with wild abandon!

Taurus: Draw on the power of Divine Will to help bring you into alignment.

Gemini: Your creative endeavors have an edgy quality this summer. Have fun with it!

In the next issue, the spotlight will be on Virgo and Libra. Stay tuned!
