Reflections

by Rev. LeRoy Zemke

Kowing Ourselves in the Now

... in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength.
Isaiah 30: 15

Go confidently in the direction of your dreams! Live the life you've imagined. As you simplify your life, the laws of the universe will be simpler.
Henry David Thoreau

When you dance, your purpose is not to get to a certain place on the floor. It's to enjoy each step along the way.
Wayne Dyer

In every real sense, we, each one, live in the now ... in the on-going moments of the hours, days, weeks, months and years of our lives. We essentially cannot live elsewhere even when the current moments of our lives are disorganized, painful, agonizingly cruel or unbelievably difficult.

Staying present to the moment-by-moment expression of our life's thrust in our personal world, in our business or professional world, or for that matter whatever may constitute the social, economic, political, psychological and spiritual environment is very often challenging and conflicting. So what's the option? Or stated another way, what choices do we have in the face of all manner of life's uncertainties?

All spiritual traditions ask us to get quiet, to get still and to let go of appearances. Appearances for example, are the imagined results of a medical test or group of tests.
Appearances are the observations we make of a difficult situation, a disagreement between people, a jumping to conclusions about someone's behavior before we really know what is happening to them or perhaps why. All of us know that misunderstandings occur with loved ones/friends, acquaintances and workers in our business or social life that later prove to be based on how we interpreted a situation, a tense voice tone or even a misunderstood gesture. When some or any of these ideas or experiences occur, we fail to live in the now.

Obviously we need to move confidently in the direction of our good decisions, and trust our inner, deep and hopefully wise reasons for making choices. Rushing into fear, loss, hurt and disappointment is not a wise use of our energy and prevents us from staying present to the bigger picture of our life or the magical moments available to us, all around us or those we know and love.

Fear keeps us attached to the past and colors our future. If we focused upon the negative consequences of driving an automobile, or riding a bicycle, sailing, running a race or any other kind of sport activity we can name, we would remain stopped by the image of ... it cannot work ... or it will not work.

“Life unfolds in the present. But so often, we let the present slip away, allowing time to rush past unobserved and unseized, and squandering the precious seconds of our lives as we worry about the future and ruminate about what’s past. We’re living in a world that contributes in a major way to mental fragmentation, disintegration, distraction, decoherence, says Buddhist scholar B. Alan Wallace. We’re always doing something, and we allow little time to practice stillness and calm.

When we’re at work, we fantasize about being on vacation; on vacation, we worry about the work piling up on our desks. We dwell on intrusive memories of the past or fret about what may or may not happen in the future. We don’t appreciate the living present because our “monkey minds,” as Buddhists call them, vault from thought to thought like monkeys swinging from tree to tree.

Most of us don’t undertake our thoughts in awareness. Rather, our thoughts control us. Ordinary thoughts course through our mind like a deafening waterfall, writes Jon Kabat-Zinn, the biomedical scientist who introduced meditation into mainstream medicine. In order to feel more in control of our minds and our lives, to find the sense of balance that eludes us, we need to step out of this current, to pause, and, as Kabat-Zinn puts it, to “rest in stillness”—to stop doing and focus on just being.

We need to live more in the moment. Living in the moment—also called mindfulness—is a state of active, open, intentional attention on the present. When you become mindful, you realize that you are not your thoughts; you become an observer of your thoughts from moment to moment without judging them. Mindfulness involves being with your thoughts as they are, neither grasping at them nor pushing them away. Instead of letting your life go by without living it, you awaken to experience.” from Psychology Today

To consider the inner power available to us as we focus upon the present, give thought to the idea that we are a living breathing entity held in an unconditional field of radiant force. This radiant energy is breathing us even as we feel we are breathing it. While we are breathing we think we are in control but breath is not under the function of our will. We can speed it up or slow it down but it has its own quality. It is dynamic, fluid and all embracing!

Once we genuinely relax into this state, it is incredibly freeing ... it allows us to see/sense/feel that whatever we are calling God or the Life Presence, we are really able to see our tendency to control outcome or worry about things far beyond our reasonable involvement with them.

Some important values we can uncover regarding living in the now:

- It invites us to focus (in a mindfulness sense) upon the deeper components of our nature.

- Distractions that tend to pull us away from our necessary or important choices fall away.
- Once we decide that we are no longer victims of an unfriendly universe or pawns of a capricious cosmic chess player, we claim freedom to be the soul we incarnated to be and thus reveal to ourselves and our life the larger purposes of our soul.
- We allow ourselves to surrender fantasies, however pleasant they may be. Imaging possible or desirable outcomes to our yearnings is a worthy exercise. Staying present to life allows us to actually accomplish the goal(s) we imagine.
- Staying present allows us to show up for our own life and let go of trying to control others and some scenario that's theirs to do. The clearer we are about who we are, the more we can focus upon what is essential to us that the Source of All Life is seeking to express through and as us.

Finally, I believe meditation, mindfulness practices and prayer are helpful to live in the now.

Living in the now really suggests that we can access the power of the “God within”. We can call it Divine Light, Divine Love, Divine Wisdom or some other name but it is the real anchor in the times that we are being buffeted by unruly winds and noisy storms created by our ego nature.

Clarity comes when we become quiet and still. Then we can genuinely go forward in the moment to see what is placed before us.

... in quietness and in confidence shall be your strength.

Astro – Insights for May and June

by Carol (CJ) Bonni

Overview for May:

There is a total Lunar Eclipse on Friday, May 5th at 1:34 in the afternoon. Sun is almost directly overhead, but the eclipsed Full Moon is opposite the Sun, at the very bottom of the chart, and will be visible only in parts of Africa, Asia and Australia, but not anywhere in the U.S. In any case, Eclipses are always interesting events and this one is no exception because from start to finish it lasts a total of 4(!) hours. That is extraordinary.

New Moon occurs May 19th 11:53 AM at 28 degrees Taurus, and there is a busy line-up in Taurus, with 6 planets including the Sun and Moon. Taurus is a very practical dependable earth sign. Adding some emotion to the mix we find Venus and Mars doing a slow tango with Venus at 12 Cancer and Mars 29 Cancer, add Neptune in romantic Pisces, all this forming an enticing alignment with all those planets in Taurus. This is way more exciting than an Eclipse!

Overview for June:

Full Moon on June 3rd 11:42 PM, Sun at 13 Gemini, Moon at 14 Sagittarius. The energy of the Full Moon is stressful and makes it difficult to focus on work, however Sagittarius Moon suggests fun and adventure, so it's a trade-off. I think fun and adventure will win out.

New Moon on June 18th at 12:37 AM at 26 degrees Gemini, an air sign known for its duality and love of new experiences. Also loves to tinker, take things apart and then put them back together. You will never get bored with your Gemini friends. This New Moon is squared by Neptune, adding a promise of romance. Be careful, because Neptune is probably promising more than can be delivered.

Aries: Be brave (easy for you). Follow your own path. New adventures await. Start something that will bring you joy and satisfaction.

Taurus: Ask your higher self for inspiration in getting out of the rut you sometimes find yourself in. Be willing to take chances.

Gemini: Communication is your strong suit. Be ready to act as a mediator. People are ready to hear your words of wisdom.

Cancer: Make your home a place of safety and warmth. Invite your guardian angel to show you how you can share your love.

Leo: You bring so much joy to others with your ability to entertain. Know how much this is a blessing for others. Your life will be enriched.

Virgo: You are blessed every time you strive to be the best you can be. Your talents are very much appreciated by everyone whose life you touch.

Libra: You have an innate ability to always see the other person's point of view. Bless everyone before you say anything. You will be blessed in return.

Scorpio: You are the detectives of the Zodiac. When you discover someone's dark side, be kind. Ask your higher self if you need guidance about saying anything.

Sagittarius: You love the feeling of freedom. You are generous and optimistic. You believe in the power of laughter. This is a blessing you can share with others.

Capricorn: You are an authority figure who is respected by all who know you. Share your experiences with others who will be blessed by learning the traditions you teach them.

Aquarius: You are the humanitarians of the Zodiac, committed to making the world a better place. Share your vision of Heaven on Earth with everyone.

Pisces: You are known for your compassion. You have the ability to see the Christ in everyone. Don't forget to bless yourself.
